Below, you'll find answers to common questions. Asking one of these questions will save you time, and you'll help yourself find answers before reading answers. Where should we go? I'll need a 600 page book or a day's discussion to answer this question. To help the most, I first need to know a lot about you: what kind of family or group you have, what interests you have, how much time you have, what are your budget goals or limitations, whether you want luxury or simplicity, whether you like bright light or isolation, what kind of activities you like, whether your grandfather or your dog will go with you. Amazingly, some readers who ask about going even where they live and will start their journey. Sorry, people can help the same way when you collect questions that are too specific. If you're not completely sure what you want to do, my best recommendations are that you (1) read many travel publications, log in to many destination websites (2), and (3) are experts in handling questions that find a good travel agent. When shall we go? As for where to question, the best time to visit depends on how the question is best time: lowest prices, minimum congestion, wide range of activities, warmest/coldest/driest/wettest climate, and on, and. From a cost point of view, the answer is almost always in low season, but it's not possible what you really want. What is rent? I probably get this one No other, and it's a bit amazing. If you get as far as & has been said, you're SmarterTravel.com on the phone. And there, on our bright new homepage, the top right, is our own rental search gateway: you can search for airport, hotel, car rental, vacation, and cruise prices. If you don't like our search system, there are dozens of others. Don't think we don't have the secret available to you. We do not do that. We have to go through the same kind of search for you. If you are asking about a trip that normally does not handle american based search engines, there is a good place to try ETN, where you can collect travel anywhere in the world and answer ticket agents with their best of the best. And if you're starting your trip to another country, the best bet you have to find is the local discount travel agency in this country, online or offline. Can you manage your trip/sell me a ticket? don't. SmarterTravel.com not manage your tickets or sales tickets. Any ticket. If you're looking for schedule information only, have a flight schedule where one of the options on the drop-down menu is to scan the top right from the travel tool. Other options include a hotel finder and provider links that sell all kinds of travel. What are the conditions? Quite a few readers ask about different needs and limitations, especially about air travel, but also about travel documents. You can answer almost all of these questions by Googling only. Here are some of your most frequent places to see questions: Airline baggage limit: every airline details this luggage policy online. Log in to the airline's website only and see a link to the luggage. If you don't see it on the drop-down menu, go to the site search or site map. (Incidentally, when you search, the official term is not goods. The goods you buy in a shop; when you put your goods in it and take it on a trip, it becomes goods.) Items allowed in luggage on the camera: The Transport Security Administration (TS) maintains a list of and don'ts for moving items. Passport and Visa Requirements: The State Department's Travel Information Homepage has a button for information about foreign travel by U.S. citizens and detailed passport information. The information button goes to a detailed list of visa requirements for entering any country in the world. Is it safe to see? Anyone can answer whether you visit any foreign country safely or anywhere in the United States, for that matter. However, the State Department compiles a wide range of data banks on the world's countries, including visitors can expect and include warnings about locations to avoid more common information about it. For information on hot trouble spots, click the travel alert from the State Department travel page, and the counselor's information sheet for other locations. Where should I complain An address list for maximum travel suppliers complaints, or at least one we contact address, somewhere Website. You can easily find them. And you can forget about making a big mess by sending a registered, return receipt letter, or emailing the EXPRESS to the CEO-it will be in the same complaint office. The U.S. Department of Transportation (point) makes it easier to voice your airline complaints too. Its website lists the current name, slow mail address, phone, and e-mail address for all major U.S. airlines complaints offices. If you want, you can collect the complaint at the point. And dot also provides extensive information about your rights and is not as air travelers. Q: I own a '92 Nasan Sarintra SE with 1.6 liter/110-horsepower engine, automatic transmission, and air conditioning. I'm planning to install support lights that need 95-amp alternator. Since my current alternator produces only 70 amps, where do I find the additional 25 amps? -Martin A. Galananchapal Hill, N. C. A: For my knowledge, it's not possible to have the hot stick additional 25 amps for your alternator. However, later there are market alternators with the amps required for your application which can be installed in your Nasan. Find someone who is proficient in automotive electronics; it is an important task and should only be tried by an experienced technis. V-belt alignment and wired compatibility are important. You will definitely get these extra amps, but don't be surprised if it's expensive. Question: I have an '89-small shadow with 69,000 miles which is in two front end accidents. The steering wheel should be held far enough to drive directly. I'm told that the car frame needs to be attached, but it's expensive work. I don't know what to do.-Mark Baimdeurban Hits, Mma:a Car you like, with a unibody built, a frame needs to be put straight on the machine which can lead to a steering problem. If an insurance company is paid to repair your car, they can pay to check your car on a frame machine. If it was any steering system damage, such as tie stick end or other related relationship, the steering wheel cannot be focused after alignment at the end of the front. Focused a steering wheel is a minor adjustable. Q: I have a '92 Lex LS 400, and I'm just as much as a salfer boo who's on the highway or after a hard fast pace at any time. What could it be?--John A. Wallaamsala Palama, California. A: Usually this smell is associated with an engine that is running a rich fuel mixture. When the Atparivarti converter attempts to burn fuel, the smell is created. Sometimes changing the gissolyn brands also produces a smell from fuel formation. First try to change the gisulein brands; if it does not help, see your dealer about the fuel mixture. If your utprevarti converter needs any adjustable, they should be made under warranty. Q: I bought a 93'Ford SHO with an automatic transmission. Electronic Fuel Pump Purchase Date Failed twice within five months. One dealer said there is bad petrol Because of failures, while others said I just don't allow my fuel level to be duped below a quarter. I don't know who to believe. -Globalism Ishadhonulo, Havaa: Metal weld spotter can be loose inside the tank, fuel pump leads to pollution. It causes overpump clothing and finally fuel pump failure. If there is no electronic wrong with your vehicle, the tank needs to be removing and cleaned (it should be covered by your car warranty). Fuel level sis not the cause of this problem. Q: I own a '91 Toyota Sugar 36,000 miles. Every time I get to the hard-to-the-right, emergency brake light comes on. It's only when driving after the car when the parking break is sat down for a while. Is this something I should worry about?-Michael Computer City, check out a two areas: look for a loose wire in the emergency brake switch, and inspect the level of brake sal in the master cylinder deposits. Since the level of the seas is monitored by a sensor, sudden movement change (hard choringading or sudden stops) can turn the break light. A faulty sensor switch in the reservoir can also generate light. If the sal is low, determine why a technician. Leone Kaplan hosted a show on 790 in Los Angeles. Writing: The Motor World of Lyon Kaplan, Motor Trend Magazine 6420 Walsari Blade. Los Angeles, CA 90048 -5515. Leone's Motolongtop is now coming to the most country this spring, it's time to touch your replacement from under the vehicle's cover, the down-to-fall charger, and kill the default. But before you start moving up to these rpms, remember to prepare your car properly for its incoming. A vehicle that has been stored for several months needs to be taken on a technician as soon as possible. But to do this you have to start the engine; it can be very difficult on the start. To prevent unnecessary grinding, spray a small amount of the starter's sal in the air cleaner. (The start-up sals are available at auto parts shops and are highly toxic and toxic, so just use them in a well-vantalated location.) This is the fastest way I've been running an engine, the oil pump allows that they need several cruncings before starting. You must store vehicles with full tank of gas to avoid contamination. If your car was partially fully stored, a technician tank is refilled with a dryer and fresh fuel. Also check the manual and brake and wheeled cylinder, and you and your fair weather ride will soon be on the road. Road.
